Pipeline of Joint Programmes

December 2021

FOREWORD

On behalf of the Steering Committee of the Migration Multi-Partner Trust Fund, I am delighted to present this 'Pipeline' of joint programmes to support the implementation of the Global Compact for Safe, Orderly and Regular Migration (GCM).

The adoption of the GCM in December 2018 marked a stand-out achievement of the international community in the pursuit of enhanced cooperation and coordination around international migration for the benefit of all. Like all multilateral agreements, however, the challenge goes beyond finalizing the text; our ambition must be to ensure that its words are brought to life through action. This document provides a roadmap by which that can be done.

In the pages that follow you will find joint programmes covering all aspects of the GCM. For each, you will find a description of the purpose of the programme, its budget, its duration, how it aligns to the Agenda 2030 and who the participating United Nations entities and national partners are.

These programmes are the product of collaborative work by members of the United Nations Network on Migration working with national partners – in government, with local authorities and alongside stakeholders. As such they are testament to the commitment of the United Nations system to work better together, fully aligned with overall reforms of the United Nations Development System.

Viewed as a whole, these programmes embody the vital 360-degree approach of the GCM, which recognizes that any approach to migration must be holistic. Individually, each fully respects the Compact's Guiding Principles – the DNA, of this landmark document.

This pipeline is a "living" document. Additional programmes can be added by the Steering Committee at each of its meetings just as some may be removed if no longer relevant or if funding has been secured from other sources. Concept notes for joint programmes are welcomed on an ongoing basis from the United Nations system and all will be considered by the Steering Committee. The Committee, too, has expressed particular interest in receiving joint programmes which, in pursuit of implementing the GCM, also take note of the potential impacts on migrants and migration presented by COVID-19.

Inherent in the notion of a 'pipeline' is flow. This booklet will be updated on a regular basis, following each Steering Committee meeting to reflect the change in status of the pipeline joint programmes and adding or removing projects in line with decisions taken.

For this pipeline to achieve its purpose, three elements are key.

First, Member States, the UN Network on Migration and all stakeholders must remain committed to implementing the GCM and to keep jointly putting forward programme ideas. The response thus far, in terms of interest and the innovation, teamwork and expertise displayed, should provide us with cause for confidence.

Secondly, the Migration MPTF governing structure and the teams whose programmes have been selected for implementation must maintain the pace and take all necessary measures to ensure timely disbursement and use of the funds.

And, finally, there is the need to ensure a strengthened, broadened, and constantly renewed donor base. We are immensely grateful to those States which have already contributed to the Fund just as we are mindful of the financial pressures all governments face.

It remains the case that, for relatively modest sums, this Fund can perform a vital service bringing positive impact to migrants and their communities through GCM implementation. The Multi-Partner Trust Fund on Migration is an essential tool to bring to life the international community's commitment to better cooperation on migration; as such I commend this booklet to you.

SUMMARY

This project will focus on supporting the Government of Botswana in building on progress to date in ensuring that migration governance in the country is based on consistent, timely, complete and relevant data.

Migration dynamics and patterns in Botswana are complex and evolving. Since gaining independence in 1966, Botswana has transitioned from a developing and economically impoverished migrant sending country to a transit and migrant receiving country, attracting skilled professionals from across the continent and beyond. In addition, due to the ever changing economic and political climate in the Southern, East and Horn of Africa regions, Botswana has become a country of destination for many migrants, refugees and asylum seekers.

Building on various UN-Government ongoing and past collaborations, the joint programme responds to priority areas identified by Statistics Botswana, namely: a) Data collection digitization, data management and analysis; b) SDG monitoring, including development of SDG Indicators baselines; c) Support for open data platforms and interlinkages among data management information systems; and d) Establishment of partnerships for data collection among government, development partners, private sector and civil society, and strengthening of the National Statistical System (NSS) coordination mechanisms.

The joint programme's close collaboration with Statistics Botswana will ensure that relevant migration context and SDG indicators are mainstreamed and incorporated in the 2021 census, having an impact on policies and programmes for the decade to follow.

JOINT PROGRAMME

Supporting the Governments of Central Asian States in the implementation of the GCM

SUMMARY

All five Central Asian countries face similar migration context and challenges, including the impact of the COVID-19 pandemic. They also all recognize the lack of migration data as an obstacle to designing effective programmes and policies.

With the objective of facilitating a coordinated approach to migration management in Central Asia, the proposed programme will focus on improving gender and child sensitive data collection to inform policy development and reporting for GCM and SDGs.

The programme envisages two outcome areas related to harmonization of GCM implementation and multi-actor partnerships at regional and national levels:

- 1) It will support governments to adopt a harmonized approach and establish common institutional foundations for national GCM implementation. This will include promoting national policy coherence and coordination mechanisms aligned to the whole-of-government and society approaches; and ensuring national GCM implementation frameworks are based on human rights-based, child-sensitive, and gender-responsive principles.
- 2) It will foster regional multi-actor partnerships, including establishing a regional cooperation and exchange platform/portal on migration data.

JOINT PROGRAMME

Strengthening national capacity to collect, process, analyze and use migration data and statistics for evidence-based policy development in the Kyrgyz Republic

SUMMARY

Kyrgyzstan has been facing outmigration almost since its independence in 1991, with the number of Kyrgyz women and men migrant workers in early 2019 reaching 860,000, including about 640,000 migrants working in the Russian Federation. Yet, data and analysis related to labour migration has been limited, with no reliable assessment of its scope, structure, or characteristics. Similarly, there is limited data on foreign citizens and stateless persons entering and remaining in the Kyrgyz Republic.

To address the above, the proposed programme aims to contribute towards quality, timely and internationally comparable migration data to inform policies and advocate for the rights of migrants and their families related to employment, health, education, and social protection. The three proposed outcomes all have clear and strong focus on data: 1) improving evidence and analytical base of migration-related statistical data; 2) building national capacity on migration data usage, production and analysis; and 3) implementing integrated digital systems for better migration data exchange.

The key partners will be national governmental counterparts, including the National Statistical Committee, but workers' and employers' organizations will also be engaged. Further, it is envisaged that an Inter-Agency Working Group of Migration Data Producers will be established to ensure improvement of accuracy on migration data production and exchange.

SUMMARY

As a major country of origin, transit and destination, Nigeria's mixed migration dynamics are complex and often impact the entire West Africa region. Despite strong efforts by the government including the adoption of the first National Migration Policy in 2015, effective migration management and governance remains a challenge.

The joint programme seeks to strengthen migration management and governance in Nigeria through the promotion of fact-based and data-driven migration policy and planning. It will do so by: 1) strengthening capacities for research, data collection, analysis and dissemination; 2) reviewing the National Migration Policy in light of the recent events and trends in the migration space; and 3) developing a national implementation plan for the Global Compact on Migration (GCM).

The proposed initiative is led by the national government with a whole-of-government approach including nine governmental entities (from the Immigration Service to the Ministry of Labour and Employment through the National Bureau of Statistics) partnering on the joint programme. It also strongly aligns with the Government's priorities and builds upon work by the National Commission for Refugees, Migrants and Internally Displaced Persons (NCFRMI) and the Technical Working Group on Migration.

Moreover, in line with the GCM guiding principles, the joint programmes will take a whole-of-society and people-centred approach, through consultations and engagements with migrant associations, diaspora representatives, and a range of other non-state actors, throughout the project cycle.

SERBIA

JOINT PROGRAMME

Promoting evidence-based migration governance for maximizing development potential of migration

PARTICIPATING UN ORGANIZATIONS

KEY PARTNERS

Commissariat for Refugees and Migration (Migration Training Centre); local migration councils and local governments

SUMMARY

The project will address migration data needs and strengthen policy capacities at both national and local levels. Aligning strongly with national priorities, it will work closely with the Serbian Commissariat for Refugees and Migration (SCRM) and its Migration Training Centre (MTC), reinforcing SCRM's role in providing capacity development and knowledge management strategies for improved local migration policy planning and implementation.

The strength of this project is its focus on challenges faced by local communities facing complex migration situations. While Local Migration Action Plans exist in every Serbian local government, stakeholders often rely on limited data and possess limited capacities to assess, evaluate, use, and analyses data. The project will work closely with the Local Migration Councils to address diverse and ever-changing migration dynamics, including sustainable reintegration of returnees, stigma and discrimination, health and social protection, youth unemployment, labour market shortages, and diaspora engagement.

SUMMARY

Since mid-2019 the Government of Viet Nam has been working towards a "Decree on the Implementation of the Global Compact for Safe, Orderly and Regular Migration of the United Nations". In order to provide a timely contribution to complement the Government's efforts and the priorities set forth by the Decree, this joint UN programme will support the establishment of a multi-stakeholder GCM Steering Committee, to be convened by the Ministry of Foreign Affairs (MOFA).

The joint programme will further focus on strengthening fact-based and data-driven migration discourse, policy and planning. First, it will provide technical, financial and training support to harmonize common methodologies for migration-related data collection, analysis, communication and dissemination. Second, it will strengthen Government capacity to address data gaps and assess key trends, with a focus on gender and labour migration, via production of a stand-alone annual international labour migration survey. Lastly, it will provide technical support for Government to produce a periodic migration profile and corresponding thematic policy papers, which will include disaggregated data on wide range of issues including immigration, international labour migration, recruitment costs, health, living and working conditions, wages, violence and harassment, and the wider impact on communities of origin.

Following the production of the migration profile and thematic policy papers, the joint programme will support national and provincial policy dialogues. These dialogues will be key to feed into development of laws and policies, notably the Law on Contract-based Vietnamese Overseas Workers and Human Trafficking Law, set to be revised during the joint programme timeframe. The data produced by the joint programme will also support mainstreaming migration into the National Action Plan for the implementation of the 2030 Sustainable Development Agenda.

JOINT PROGRAMME

Strengthen the government capacities in protection and reintegration of migrant persons and their families for a holistic approach with a human rights focus

SUMMARY

The proposed programme intends to respond to the challenges posed by the rapidly changing migration profile of El Salvador from a country of origin to one of transit and return. The country is currently confronted with needs related to the return of migrants from the United States and a socio-economic context that may push more migrants into the dangerous migratory routes of Central America.

Thanks to a clear geographic focus on four municipalities (Santa Ana, Ahuachapán, Sonsonate y San Salvador) amongst the most affected, this joint initiative is the expression of a strong partnership with both national and local governments.

The expected results are: (i) the availability of protection and humanitarian assistance to migrants in vulnerable situations, especially women, LGBTIQ persons and families who lost a relative in transit; (ii) strong models of sustainable financial reintegration for returned migrants with a particular emphasis on women and LGBTIQ persons; (iii) robust mechanisms of psycho-social assistance for migrants and their families; and, (iv) the rolling-out of an advocacy strategy that puts the premium on human rights.

This joint programme offers a very comprehensive approach to the protection of migrants by intervening and providing support at the different stages of the migration cycle: protection of migrants during transit, reintegration of returnees and reduction of risks of irregular migration.

SUMMARY

This joint programme will protect vulnerable children in Ethiopia from violence, abuse and exploitation through a strengthened child protection system; and communities will demonstrate increased resilience to the adverse drivers of irregular migration due to quality rehabilitation and reintegration interventions.

Yearly, thousands undertake journeys on the perilous Eastern Migratory Route, on which migrants – including unaccompanied and separated children (UASC) – risk malnutrition, exhaustion, and violence from smugglers, traffickers, brokers and others. This Programme will contribute to improving the protection of children on the move in Ethiopia. It will include interventions along the Eastern Route, and reintegration assistance targeting communities of origin in the most migration-prone regional states.

The joint programme complements UNICEF and IOM's on-going collaboration in support of the Government of Ethiopia's (GoE) child protection authorities, which will be expanded to border crossing points on the Eastern Route. It will build on the post-arrival and reintegration assistance being provided to UASC returning from the Eastern Route and strengthen the capacity of the GoE's child protection systems. Importantly, the joint programme reflects findings from assessments conducted in late 2019 at the community level in the main source regions for mixed migration in Ethiopia. Additionally, it will pilot the use of the recently adopted National Child Protection Case Management Framework for potential future scale-up, which includes operationalization in regional states and in prominent first points of contact with UASC.

JOINT PROGRAMME

Reinforcing protection of vulnerable migrants in Ghana

SUMMARY

The migration dynamics of Ghana are complex, being a place of origin, transit and destination, located strategically along the Lagos-Abidjan Corridor, a historic migratory route. Recent cases of Ghanaian women being trafficked for domestic labour have led the government to ban emigration to the Gulf region since 2017; and with the majority of recruitment agencies unregistered, there is limited promotion of ethical recruitment practices. There are also high incidences of child migrants.

The lack of a migration governance body as envisioned in the 2016 National Migration Policy, remains a major constraint to migrant protection. Migration management is compartmentalized, with no coordination platform beyond ad hoc mechanisms. Further, Ghana has not ratified key instruments for the protection of migrant workers, such as the ILO Convention on Migration for Employment and the Domestic Workers Convention.

The joint programme will reinforce the governance structures around migration management by supporting the establishment of a national migration commission. In addition, it will build on existing mechanisms to develop an integrated nationally applicable referral mechanism, including guidelines for case management and applying the best interests of the child principle. It will also reinforce the capacity of the Labour Department to promote fair and ethical recruitment and offer gender-responsive services to potential and returning migrants in the areas of business skills development. Furthermore, this intervention aims to collaborate with the national partners to develop dedicated portals and resource centres to provide migrants with information on rights enshrined in regional and national laws. This action will also include a community engagement and sensitization strategy aimed at the dissemination of migrant protection tools to communities.

SUMMARY

Traditionally a country of origin, Mexico recently became a country of transit, return and destination for migrants in the corridor between Central American countries and the United States. This proposed joint programme seeks to address the challenges posed by the sudden arrival of an estimated amount of 600 000 undocumented migrants in 2019, in particular the increased vulnerability of this population due to their exclusion from basic services and formal employment, and the lack of adapted protection mechanisms.

With participation of all key national institutions, the joint programme will strengthen national capacities to provide information and referral, considering age and gender specific needs, and will support the development of protocols that promote regularization of undocumented migrants, thus providing access to social services, work opportunities and integration. Children will benefit from a specific focus and will be provided access to strengthened protection procedures and alternative care options that protect their human rights and their best interest.

While building on on-going efforts of the Government of Mexico and the participating UN organizations, the joint programme proposes innovative approaches such as a tracking system and the automatization of registry procedures to clear pathways towards regularization for undocumented migrants and persons in need of international protection.

SUMMARY

An estimated 8,000 to 10,000 youth migrate through irregular means from Sierra Leone annually, with over a quarter of those trafficked into forced labour and/or sexual exploitation. Key drivers identified include lack of economic and social opportunities, misleading information on prospects abroad, and limited youth participation in community decision-making.

The proposed joint programme aims to reduce the level of irregular migration among youth in Sierra Leone by addressing their key drivers. The joint programme takes a comprehensive approach via four result areas: 1) Shifting youth behaviours and attitudes via relevant information to counter misinformation and provide a better understanding of vulnerability stemming from high-risk migration; 2) Empowering community influencers such as religious/traditional leaders, and media to raise awareness; 3) Improving economic and social opportunities for youth nationwide via revision of the National Youth Policy to better safeguard youth rights and emphasize skills development; and 4) Improving social /economic status, employment skills and entrepreneurial potential among youth in at-risk communities, including young women.

The joint programme is unique in its focus on at-risk youth in sending communities. In addition to its whole-of-government approach, it has a strong community-based whole-of-society approach, proposing to work with three communities with high rates of irregular migration and engaging with numerous community partners such as youth commission and district council representatives, civil society (include youth and women's organizations), religious and traditional leaders, media, private sector, school officials and teachers. Moreover, Local Coordination Groups will be formed in each of the communities, to guide design and implementation of the joint programme, such as community-appropriate design of advocacy, policy and awareness raising interventions, among others.

JOINT PROGRAMME

Making migration safe for women

SUMMARY

Women migrants in South Africa are concentrated in the informal economy in sectors such as domestic work, informal trading, care work, sex work and agriculture, and their migration pathways and experiences place them at heightened risk of sexual violence, exploitation, forced labour, abuse and health vulnerabilities. The Making Migration Safe Programme will work to address the need for gender-responsive migration governance in South Africa, in order to ensure that migration is safe and regular for all women migrating from, into and through the country.

The joint programme will work with South African government institutions to develop and strengthen migration policies, laws and services, ensuring they are gender-responsive and human-rights based; and support migrant women and their organizations to advocate for the promotion and protection of migrant women's rights. The joint programme brings together women's organisations with a broad range of UN partners, government counterparts and CSOs. In doing so, it adopts a people-centered, whole-of-society and whole-of-government approach to the development and implementation of gender-responsive migration policies and laws to address the specific needs, challenges and vulnerabilities of women and girls in migration. It will support South Africa to implement the GCM at the grassroots (migrant women and their organizations), national (laws, policies, and institutions) and global (normative processes on migration, human rights, and gender equality) levels.

JOINT PROGRAMME

Strengthening Protection, Safety and Wellbeing Of Unaccompanied Minors And Separated Children In Zimbabwe

SUMMARY

Due to depressed macro-economic environment, recurring climate shocks and underinvestment in social services, vulnerability of children engaging in unsafe migration have increased over the years. With high numbers of children on the move, Zimbabwe faces various challenges related to unsafe and/or irregular migration of children, especially unaccompanied minors (UAMs) and separated children. While there has been progress in strengthening national child protection systems, gaps remain in addressing irregular migration, including regional coordination.

In order to address these gaps and increase the protection, safety and wellbeing of UAMs and separated children, the programme proposes interventions in four areas:

- 1) Support reception, reintegration, protection and wellbeing of UAMs and separated children;
- 2) Strengthen institutional capacity for the protection of UAMs and separated children;
- 3) Strengthen linkages with social protection, livelihoods and coping capacities for households of UAMs and separated children; and 4) Improve knowledge and strengthen advocacy, coordination and collaboration.

JOINT PROGRAMME

Strengthening of border management and capacities of local communities to prevent human trafficking and migrant smuggling with a rights-based approach and gender and childhood perspective.

SUMMARY

Argentina has 237 border crossings along land borders shared with five countries and extending for 9,376km. With close to 69 million border transit movements in 2019, the volume of border movements is significant.

The joint programme has identified five border crossings and their neighbouring local communities as target intervention areas: Bernardo de Irigoyen and San Antonio (boundaries with Brazil); Paso Formosa (boundary with Paraguay); Puerto Chalanas and Salvador Mazza (boundaries with Bolivia). These five border crossings recorded over 7 million border crossing movements in 2019 (10% of total migration movements) and have exhibited critical gaps in terms of infrastructure and staff capacities to better manage migration entry and exit. Moreover, as Argentina is an origin, transit and destination country for human trafficking and smuggling of migrants, the joint programme will focus on identifying protection needs of migrant women, boys, and girls, facilitating the implementation of local mechanisms and strategies to prevent and combat human trafficking and smuggling of migrants.

In the joint programme design phase, extensive consultations took place with civil society organizations composed of migrants and refugees and organizations holding mandates on the protection and promotion of migrant rights to ensure the point of view of migrants were taken into account and their recommendations incorporated. Once underway, all levels of government (from central ministries to municipal authorities through provincial governments), will be closely involved in the management of the programme.

JOINT PROGRAMME

Strengthening coordination and exchange of information between law enforcement in prosecution of smuggling of migrants and human trafficking transnational crimes

SUMMARY

With a strong emphasis on human rights and gender, this joint programme aims at combatting the smuggling of migrants, human trafficking and other transnational crimes which persists in Central America as confirmed by recent police investigations and interviews with migrants along the borders of Panama, Costa Rica and Northern Triangle countries.

This joint initiative will strengthen cooperation between prosecutors and police, in particular in the area of data collection and analysis. As women account for 80% of all identified victims of trafficking in North and Central America and the Caribbean, the strengthening of law enforcement capacities will be complemented by a specific gender equality and human rights focus such as the establishment of a Commission on Gender and Access to Justice or the development of referral mechanisms between the health, social services and law enforcements sectors. Noting that migrants are often preyed upon by criminals who offer unregulated financial services, the programme will also aim at providing migrants with secure and inexpensive financial services (such as transferring remittances) through the national postal network.

Extensive consultations with extra-regional and Central American migrants at sites along the border of Costa Rica were instrumental in the development of the proposed programme, which will be implemented in close partnership with a variety of government partners.

The initiative has strong potential for cross-border collaboration and aims explicitly at replication/expansion in other central American countries.

JOINT PROGRAMME

Enhance border management and combat transnational crime at the northern border of Côte d'Ivoire and Cascades region of Burkina Faso

SUMMARY

As the security situation continues to deteriorate in the Sahel, there are growing concerns of destabilisation spreading towards the Gulf of Guinea, impacting Côte d'Ivoire as well as Ghana, Benin and Togo. The northern border of Côte d'Ivoire and the Cascades region of Burkina Faso remain underdeveloped. This, along with long-standing intercommunal tensions in the border areas and a historic absence of the state, may render the region susceptible to extremist influences, as well as various forms of organized crime, including trafficking in persons and smuggling of migrants.

The region presents specific fragilities related to the cohabitation of different communities in the face of pressure on limited land and natural resources, the weakness of basic social services, and the marginalization of the role of women and their absence from local conflict management mechanisms.

The joint programme will address these problems by strengthening border management. In addition to strengthening data collection and capacities of border authorities, the key feature of this joint programme is its engagement of the border communities with a strong gender-empowerment focus. The joint programme will strengthen resilience of cross-border populations by facilitating dialogue and exchange among marginalized groups, mainly women, for their active participation and ownership of decision-making and local governance priorities. It will increase access to basic services, infrastructures and diversified livelihood opportunities and reinforce the presence of state services. And it will reinforce capacities of women in conflict mitigation, resolution and early warning, strengthening trust between and among cross-border communities and local authorities.

The joint programme has strong potential for cross-border collaboration and replication/expansion in other cross-border areas in the region. It will also ensure specific needs related to the effects of the current COVID-19 pandemic are assessed and addressed.

JOINT PROGRAMME

Innovative approaches to address inclusion and integration, through health and economic empowerment of migrant street children and youth in Addis Ababa

SUMMARY

Ethiopia, with a population of 107 million, is a hub for outward and inward migration. In addition to being one of the major labour sending countries, it is also the largest refugee hosting country in Africa. The burden this poses for cities is colossal. Addis Ababa, with an estimated 3 million population in the 2007 census, now informally estimates that is now beyond 7 million. The city administration lacks capacity to support accurate registration of, and provision of services and protection for, migrants and returnees, mostly irregular migrants forcibly returned. Many children, youth and adolescents end up in precarious situations, living on the streets and exposed to high levels of exploitation and substance abuse.

Based on a consultative approach with NGOs, other stakeholders and beneficiaries, the joint programme will aim to support the federal government, Addis Ababa city administration and local organizations in providing reintegration support to returning migrants, focusing on the areas of health, housing, social protection, livelihoods and employment. It also seeks to reduce vulnerability among migrants and communities, to trafficking and smuggling.

There is a strong engagement with the Addis Ababa City Administration, as well as various civil society organizations and other partners. This whole-of-society approach is mirrored by a whole-of-government approach. The joint programme is well-aligned with strategic national priorities, is complementary to other ongoing initiatives, and has strong potential for replication in other Ethiopian cities.

SUMMARY

Over the past decade, previously purely economic migration to Gabon has morphed into mixed migration movements, with a marked increase in human trafficking, in particular of women and children, predominantly via maritime routes. Recent investigations point, in particular, to criminal circuits extending from Togo, Cameroon and other countries overland to Nigeria, and then by boat on to Gabon. From Gabon there is anecdotal evidence of further transit of clandestine migration on to Europe.

To address these complex dynamics, the project aims to help prevent and counter trafficking in persons (TIP) and the smuggling of migrants (SOM) along the maritime and land routes from Togo, via Nigeria, to Gabon. It is strongly aligned to national priorities, including a recently signed Cooperation Agreement between Gabon and Togo to address human trafficking of children.

A unique and innovative element of this project is its 'migratory route' approach, i.e. from origin country (Togo) through transit (Nigeria) to destination (Gabon). While the particular focus countries of the proposal are Togo and Gabon, there will be alignment and close coordination with Nigeria through ongoing complementary initiatives in the sub-region.

The project will also work closely with regional economic organisations including the Economic Community of Central African States (ECCAS) and the Economic Community of West African States (ECOWAS).

SUMMARY

Irregular migration from Pakistan, especially parts of Punjab province, is a long-standing phenomenon and is driven largely by socioeconomic challenges. The most common and well-documented smuggling route is the land route to Europe via Turkey. This is often referred to as the Eastern Mediterranean Route and is predominantly used by Pakistani, Afghan, and Bangladeshi nationals who rely on Pakistani smuggling networks while transiting through Pakistan. Pakistan is also a source, transit and destination country for victims of human trafficking, with the Gulf Countries as common destinations.

The project aims to address Trafficking in Persons (TiP) and Smuggling of Migrants (SoM) from Pakistan along the Eastern Mediterranean Route through interventions related to:

- Prevention (potential irregular migrants and communities have greater capacities to identify and prevent risks);
- Protection (victims receive quality protection and assistance);
- Prosecution (strengthen Government's capacity to combat transnational crimes); and
- Partnerships (facilitate exchange of regional and global best practices on combatting TIP and SoM).

The project is strongly aligned to national priorities, and builds upon extensive historical and ongoing engagements in the country, following strong whole-of-government and whole-of-society approaches. Notably, it proposes close collaboration with a diverse range of civil society and local community partners during implementation.

JOINT PROGRAMME

Facilitating regular migration and decent work through implementation of labour migration policy targeting Basotho seasonal labour in Ceres farms (place of destination) and youth in Quthing (place of origin)

SUMMARY

There are an estimated 5,000-10,000 labour migrants from Lesotho ("Basotho"), both regular and irregular, working on agricultural farms in Ceres, KwaZulu Natal province, South Africa. While the long-standing seasonal labour migration scheme set up by the Department of Labour in South Africa brings overall mutual benefits, challenges persist, including: lack of systematic monitoring and limited provision of services to migrant workers as per the bilateral MoU; poor remittance infrastructure and facilities in Lesotho; and continued hiring of undocumented Basotho labour migrants and subsequent vulnerabilities faced by migrants, their families and affected communities.

To address these challenges, the joint programme will enhance the benefits of this labour migration scheme for the employers and migrants by ensuring more systematic monitoring by both governments of the working conditions, setting up adequate complaint mechanisms and by putting in place pre-departure orientation practices.

The joint programme will also strengthen remittance infrastructure to ensure access to services at reduced transaction costs, and strengthen public service provision for returning/returned migrants in training and job placements. The joint programme will further strengthen the capacities of youth and women in Quthing to set up innovative and sustainable business enterprises and seek to increase civic engagement among Basotho in Quthing, ensuring greater social cohesion and quality of living within the communities.

The joint programme will serve as a model for other migrant labour sectors, such as construction and domestic work. It integrates a gender and human rights sensitive approach throughout the project implementation cycle, and fits within the framework of the Southern African Development Community (SADC) Labour Migration Action Plans and Regional Labour Migration Policy Framework.

JOINT PROGRAMME

Initiative for Diaspora Engagement and Investment in Mali's Regions (INEDIT Mali)

SUMMARY

Mali's large diaspora, particularly in West Africa and Europe, is estimated at approximately 6 million. Formal financial transfers of the Malian diaspora represent approximately 6.7% of national GDP in 2018, and the country promotes diaspora engagement via several political frameworks. However, this engagement is underutilized for productive investment beyond transfers for consumption, with the amount of remittances used for investments standing at only 5%.

Aligned with national priorities and the African Union Migration Policy Framework, the joint programme was designed through consultations with authorities at the national, regional and local level as well as civil society organizations, including diaspora associations. It has a strong focus on gender and incorporates lessons learned from existing initiatives in both Mali and neighbouring countries by strengthening the engagement of Mali's diaspora community and addressing the lack of financial solutions for small and medium enterprises (SMEs).

The joint programme will undertake to bring together and align public and private contributions to development by 1) creating a conducive environment for diaspora engagement and participation in local socio-economic development; 2) Providing financial education and increasing livelihood provision competencies of local communities; and 3) Creating sustainable financial solutions to channel remittances and savings to invest in local economic development projects.

JOINT PROGRAMME

Strengthening government capacity to ensure safe, orderly and regular migration (GCM)

SUMMARY

Almost half of Nepal's households have a member working overseas or returned from working overseas. There is significant concern in Nepal about the exploitation of migrants, including trafficking of women and children, and a tendency toward circular migration with the current Nepali domestic labour market failing to promote sustainable reintegration for migrants. Lack of harmonization of policies and laws remains a challenge in migration governance, and the Government of Nepal (GoN) has advocated for the GCM as key in addressing this, including through the development of a national strategy to implement the GCM.

This joint programme builds on ongoing initiatives of key stakeholders, that focus on internal employment, fair and ethical labour migration, and sustained reintegration of migrants including women and children. Its overall object is to provide UN-wide support to the GoN, developing its capacity at central and provincial levels to enhance migration governance. It will achieve this by strengthening migration-related policies and services, including: piloting the 'Integrated Service Centre' at provincial/local levels; developing a roadmap to support the sustainable socio-economic reintegration of returnees, particularly women, including by promoting skills acquired abroad; generating non-traditional employment opportunities and supporting entrepreneurship to tackle gender based social stigma; and building the capacity of stakeholders.

The joint programme will promote fair and ethical recruitment by building awareness of gender-responsive recruitment principles and strengthening the existing multi-stakeholder national working group on migration (Migration Group of Nepal), which supports the GoN's governance of labour mobility, including addressing the issue of children left behind. It was informed by a consultative process with UN agencies and stakeholders – including CSOs, academics, research institutes and private sector recruitment agencies – and supports the GCM's overarching principles of gender-responsive, people-centred and child-sensitive approaches.

JOINT PROGRAMME

Leveraging the positive impact of migration on Moldova's development through improved policy evidence and better engaged diaspora.

SUMMARY

Migration waves, which started in the 1990s, have led to an outflow of Moldovan nationals, with a quarter of the population residing abroad (approximately 720,000 persons according to the National Bureau of Statistics). In the last four years, the share of migrants aged 18-29 years increased from 55% to 66%. However, lack of adequate information and analysis of the actual and potential factors driving migration limit the ability of the Government to devise appropriate migration policies, including groups left behind and highly skilled migrants. Moreover, there are limited opportunities for diaspora to engage through return or investment in home country.

To address these challenges, the proposed programme aims to leverage the positive impact and minimize the negative effects of migration on Moldova's socio-economic development. First, the programme will strengthen the capacities of relevant public authorities for ensuring effective migration policy design and management. It will draw recommendations for policy response following the profile analysis of various categories of migrants, diaspora communities and their engagement potential as well as of the impacts that migration and remittances have on the structure of the communities left behind, including children.

Second, the programme will employ innovative mechanisms to strengthen diaspora engagement, including the establishment of participatory platforms for outreach, consultation and capitalization of diaspora's skills, knowledge and expertise for development initiatives. In addition, it will attract diaspora investments to Moldova, and develop trade and business partnerships in sectors such as tourism.

JOINT PROGRAMME

Labour mobility for sustainable development and climate resilience in the Pacific

SUMMARY

The Pacific region is increasingly impacted by climate change and natural hazards, leading to population displacement and livelihood challenges. A strategy adopted by over 100,000 Pacific Islanders is to seek seasonal labour employment opportunities in New Zealand and Australia. However, various challenges exist in the context of decent work, financial awareness and literacy, social impacts on families and communities left behind, social and economic reintegration, and participation of women in regional labour mobility schemes.

To this end, the joint programme will work with Pacific governments and stakeholders, including the private sector and trade unions to contribute to increased benefits of safe and fair migration as a sustainable development and climate resilience strategy. It will conduct assessments and set up dialogues related to labour mobility and climate change. It will work to ensure that decent work principles and standards are included in relevant labour migration programmes, regulations and legislation, and that potential migrant workers, recruitment agencies, and employer organizations in Australia and New Zealand are informed of these standards.

The programme will have a strong focus on pre-employment and pre-departure tools and curricula and will ensure that governments are equipped to support migrants and recruiters in this regard. Finally, the programme will work towards improving social and labour market integration of returning migrants workers by, for example, supporting governments to develop post-return financial literacy and planning guidance.

Safe and skilled migration for young Tajiks abroad

SUMMARY

Lack of opportunities for local employment drives high rates of migration among Tajik youth (38-40%). Most of these youth are low-skilled and unprepared to take advantage of job opportunities abroad. They lack information on risks and often migrate and work irregularly.

This joint programme seeks to reduce irregular migration, lower migrants' vulnerability to abuse and exploitation and increase the flow of remittances to Tajikistan. On one hand, the Tajik Government, with support from the Participating UN Organizations, will seek to improve knowledge and skills among prospective young migrants through offering financial literacy and Russian language self-learning courses and making use of modern information platforms to ensure a wide outreach. The programme will also aim at building the capacity of recruitment agencies and strengthening the cooperation between the Government of Tajikistan, the Russian Federation and the Tajik Diaspora organizations.

The joint programme is strongly rooted in GCM key principles. It is built on a whole-of-government approach with the strong involvement of the Ministry of Education, the Ministry of Labour, Migration and Employment of Population, the Migration Services and the Committee of Youth Affairs and Sports both at the national and district levels. The program is gender-sensitive (women migrants' specific needs are identified through local-level consultations and focus groups) and places a special emphasis on children: delaying labour migration until at least 18 is an explicit objective.

JOINT PROGRAMME

Western Balkans: Labour Migration for the Benefit of All

PARTICIPATING UN ORGANIZATIONS

KEY PARTNERS

Ministries of Labour, Border Management and Migration, Civil Affairs and Foreign Relations; Statistical agencies; Employment Bureaus and agencies; Universities and research institutions; Social partners and NGOs.

SUMMARY

The subregion of the Western Balkans remains a region of net emigration, with up to one third of the citizens of the six countries (Albania, Bosnia and Herzegovina, Kosovo, Montenegro, North Macedonia, and Serbia) living and working outside of the region. Intra-regional migration is also high, accounting for 10% of the population, and, as the six countries are in the process of creating a Common Regional Market, they have committed to facilitate regional mobility through an agreed set of objectives such as portability of social rights and mutual recognition of qualifications. However, the countries are at varying levels of alignment of policy and all lack comprehensive migration statistics.

Given the above context, the proposed programme will aim to facilitate intra-regional mobility and maximize the benefits of migration through the implementation of evidence-based policies. The proposal is to: 1) strengthen the regional capacity to collect and analyse data on the labour and skill mobility; and 2) foster policy dialogues in view of harmonizing labour migration policies and systems.

JOINT PROGRAMME

Addressing the medium to long-term reintegration needs and strengthening social protection support mechanisms for the social inclusion of Bangladeshi migrants

SUMMARY

In 2018 and 2019, over 1.4 million Bangladeshi workers migrated for employment, of which approximately 200,000 were female; and remittances accounted for 7-8 per cent of GDP in 2019. At this scale, the adverse effect of the COVID-19 pandemic on Bangladeshi migrant workers, their families and affected communities, are significant – this includes the impact on those who were dismissed from their jobs, those who returned (travelling both via regular and non-regular channels) and those, many undocumented, waiting to travel back and at risk of being forcibly returned.

This joint programme will contribute to the medium/ long-term recovery and social inclusion of returning Bangladeshi migrants affected by the COVID-19 pandemic-induced recession. The joint programme will address the needs and vulnerabilities of returning migrant workers, stranded migrants workers abroad, and migrants that were poised to join employment at the onset of the COVID-19 crisis. This will also impact the dependents of migrants and households reliant on remittances and communities affected by the influx of returning migrants.

In addressing the medium-term recovery and social cohesion needs, the joint programme will: 1) Empower the communities directly (e.g. provide psychosocial support and other social services, address social stigma and discrimination through community-based interventions); and 2) Assist the authorities to improve social integration support structures (e.g. establish coordination mechanisms, policy measures, mid-term recovery response, etc.).

The joint programme takes a strong whole-of-government and society approach, establishing partnerships across the full spectrum of relevant government ministries, as well as with clearly identified stakeholders that represent trade unions, NGOs/INGOs, cottage industries, municipal authorities, the private sector and academia. The programme also has a strong gender empowerment component, with specific focus on the sustainable reintegration of vulnerable women migrant workers.

JOINT PROGRAMME

Enhancement of social cohesion and inclusive development processes in Kyrgyzstan by promoting safe reintegration of returned migrant workers, with special attention to women and youth

SUMMARY

Female migrants comprise approximately 52% of all migrants and, with the unemployment rate at 33.6% among youth aged 16-29 in 2020, youth migration is a growing phenomenon. The proposed programme targets both groups (women and youth) as they face specific challenges and risks during the process of labour migration and upon return, including stigmatization, high levels of stress and difficult social adaptation.

It aims at simultaneously fostering a conducive reintegration environment (economic opportunities and equitable access to social services) and promoting a positive image of women and youth migrants.

The proposed programme takes a strong whole-of-government and whole-of-society approach. It is based on consultations with a wide range of partners, and implementation is envisaged to include a numerous government partners at national and district levels, as well as the diaspora, local communities, migrants, media and various civil society partners.

JOINT PROGRAMME

Making migration work for all:
Improved Social Cohesion and fair access to services for migrants in Morocco

SUMMARY

Since the launch of Morocco's 2013 National Strategy on Immigration and Asylum, the issue of migrant and refugee integration has become a priority for the Moroccan Government. The Strategy commits to support initiatives that ensure migrants and refugees integration and social inclusion, noting that since 2014, approximately 45,000 migrants have been regularized.

However, challenges persist. It is estimated that over 80,000 irregular migrants transit Morocco with the latest figures from January 2020 showing over 6,700 individuals in need of international protection and 3,400 seeking asylum. The number of unaccompanied and separated children (UASC) is also on the rise, representing approximately 10% of the total migrant population, and 36% of the refugee population. Of particular concern are vulnerabilities faced by women and youth, related to health and exposure to violence.

In line with the National Strategy, the joint programme will work with a broad range of government ministries and civil society partners to contribute to improving access to basic services for the most vulnerable migrants and refugees in Morocco through a combination of direct assistance and capacity-strengthening. It will achieve this via improving the capacities of service providers to deal with specific needs, such as those of women and unaccompanied children; improving access to information on rights and services for migrants, with a specific emphasis on gender and children; increasing the participation of civil society and local stakeholders in referral and orientation mechanisms; and facilitating multicultural activities through art and sport, with the aid of CSOs and local actors.

JOINT PROGRAMME

Building human security through social inclusion, comprehensive healthcare, and economic autonomy in migrant population and host communities in the district of San Juan de Lurigancho, Lima, Peru

SUMMARY

The main objective of this joint programme is to strengthen the socioeconomic inclusion and access to basic services, particularly healthcare, of primarily Venezuelan migrants and receiving communities in the district of San Juan de Lurigancho, Lima, Peru.

Following a thorough analysis of the challenges faced by the inhabitants, including through in-depth consultations of migrants and their communities, the participating UN organizations and their partners propose interventions targeting both demand (migrants and local communities) and support (local authorities, service providers and microfinance institutions) with a focus on access to quality services, peaceful coexistence and protection from gender-based violence. The emphasis on peaceful coexistence appears particularly relevant with the country witnessing increasing episodes of discrimination and xenophobia.

The proposed joint programme is based on the priorities for integration included in the Refugee and Migrant Response Plan (RMRP) 2020.

The selection of a well-defined and limited geographic scope highlights how results-oriented the programme is with the clear and tangible target of 70,000 Venezuelans to benefit. This defined geographic scope also allows for a strong involvement of local authorities in the programme design and implementation, alongside the national level institutions.

JOINT PROGRAMME

Addressing the medium-long term mobility-driven COVID-19 development impact in the Republic of Moldova and contributing to an early recovery of impacted groups

SUMMARY

Currently, a quarter of Moldovan citizenry have been integrated in countries of destination while almost one-third of Moldovan migrants currently reside abroad, including 350,000 as short-term labour migrants. The share of migrants of relatively young age (18-29 y.o.) increased by over 10 percentage points in the last four years reaching 66%.

With such migration dynamics, the challenges faced by returning Moldovan migrants, their families and communities of origin due to the COVID-19 pandemic induced recession is paramount. These challenges include financial/ social impacts of their return and reintegration, including loss of remittances.

This joint programme aims to address the medium to long-term migration-related socio-economic consequences of COVID-19 crisis in the Republic of Moldova from a development perspective.

To this end, the joint programme will aim to strengthen: 1) Evidence-based delivery of capacity support, early recovery/reintegration services and measures to compensate for lost income and diminished earning capacities; 2) Early recovery solutions for returning migrants and affected communities such as livelihoods opportunities, increased family care and schooling and enhanced resilience of public services sector, business community and labour market; 3) Awareness among migrants and engagement with diaspora community in COVID-19 response for fostering support for vulnerable groups; and 4) Government preparedness for efficient planning, coordination and facilitation of movements, health screening, case management, quarantine and referral.

The proposed initiative may potentially serve as a pilot to provide lessons learned to other countries facing similar challenges, namely the Eastern Partnership states (member states: Armenia, Azerbaijan, Belarus, Georgia, Moldova and Ukraine).

Sri Lanka: Support for socio economic recovery and strengthening resilience of migrant communities

SUMMARY

The project aims to contribute towards economic recovery and resilience of migrants and their communities in Sri Lanka, addressing the impact of the COVID-19 pandemic on migrants and affected communities. It is aligned to the National COVID-19 Response Plan for Sri Lankan migrant workers (July 2020) focusing on repatriation of affected migrant workers, reintegration and re-migration.

The proposed interventions include:

- Creating an enabling environment for returning migrants, including psychosocial and economic support, direct assistance to vulnerable migrants including Victims of Trafficking, and awareness raising on safe migration;
- Facilitating economic reintegration, including entrepreneurship skills development, an enabling business environment and employment opportunities; and
- Strengthening labour migration governance, particularly related to provision of legal assistance in destination countries.

The project will take a strong whole-of-government and whole-of-society approach, working with a wide range of government partners at national and district levels, as well as with the employers federation, and various civil society partners.

Access to inclusive and equitable quality education for migrant children in Thailand

SUMMARY

Thailand is home to an estimated 364,000 migrant children (2018). Despite progressive legal and policy frameworks that allow all children, including undocumented migrants, to access education services, it is estimated that more than 200,000 migrant children remain out of school and are not receiving any form of education. There are multiple factors that create barriers for migrant children, including additional costs to education such as transportation and accommodation, language, lack of qualified teachers and learning materials, and fear of deportation.

The joint programme will strengthen access to inclusive and equitable quality education for migrant children, particularly at primary and lower secondary levels. It will adopt a three-pronged approach focusing on generation of data and evidence, building partnerships, and policy advocacy to promote pathways for migrant education; understanding of good practices being used to support sustained integration of migrant children in Thai public schools; and availability of registered and certified Migrant Learning Centres (MLCs) offering quality education services.

The design of the joint programme has its roots in national discussions involving government, civil society, UN partners and academia. The Ministries of Education in both Thailand and Myanmar are committed to improving quality of education for migrant children, building on these discussions to date.

The joint programme further directly contributes to the current Out-of-School Children Initiative of the Government of Thailand, and complements existing initiatives in achieving the ASEAN Declaration on Strengthening Education for Out-of-School Children and Youth. As such, regional replication and expansion of the joint programme modalities and methodologies, if successful, are promising.

SUMMARY

Uruguay has experienced a sharp increase in the number of incoming migrants, with an increase in intra-regional labour migration and influx from Cuba, the Dominican Republic and Venezuela. Of particular concern are the challenges faced by female migrants, those with disabilities, as well as migrant children.

Focusing on three municipalities most highly affected by migration (one of which borders Brazil), the project will:

- Strengthen city-level services to ensure access to employment, hiring, entrepreneurship and social protection;
- Ensure migrants' knowledge and awareness about the initiatives and systems in place;
- Secure access to childcare systems for migrants; and
- Systematize the experience of cities in the programme into a methodology replicable at the national and regional level.

The project strongly aligns with the GCM whole-of-government and whole-of-society approaches, which are reflected strongly in its proposed governance structure which includes an Advisory Board (comprised of civil society organizations, migrants' organizations as well as employers and workers organizations). The project also offers an innovative aspect with the inclusion of the Uruguay diaspora to build on their own experiences of labour integration in their cities of residence.

Migration governance for sustainable development in Indonesia

SUMMARY

Migration governance in Indonesia is emerging as a whole-of-government focus, but remains significantly diffused across national and sub-national government structures, amidst decentralized government policymaking and budgeting, including around key elements such as migrant services, vocational training, and protection of vulnerable migrants and victims of trafficking.

These challenges highlight the importance of strengthening the integration of migration in national and local development planning in order to accelerate the realization of the SDGs.

The joint programme will help strengthen the Government of Indonesia's capacity in evidence-based migration management at the national and sub-national levels, in line with the GCM. This will include support in establishing an inter-institutional coordination mechanism and a National Action Plan for GCM.

The engagement at the sub-national level is highly relevant in the Indonesian context given the challenges related to decentralisation. Ensuring whole-of-society and government approaches, the programme design involves local leaders, such as mayors and city administrators. It envisages strong ownership and empowerment at the sub-national level, emphasizing localized migration governance priorities, followed by the design, implementation, and monitoring of appropriate interventions.

It will further establish platforms for sub-national governments to exchange best practices on migration policies and programmes as regards the protection and empowerment of Indonesian migrant workers. Civil society partners will be central to all aspect of programming design and implementation.

SUMMARY

North Macedonia is affected by strong mixed migration movements but lacks reliable data on which to build its migration policy. The joint programme will strengthen national capacity to collect, share and analyse data and support the development of an evidence-based migration policy. The joint programme will also focus on using evidence gathered to raise awareness about migration amongst the general public and prevent xenophobia and stigmatization of migrants and refugees.

The initial needs assessment was carried out through a consultative process during which the UN agencies and the national government were actively engaged. With the emphasis placed on data exchange amongst key institutions and the active involvement of the State Statistical Office and three different ministries, this joint programme is strongly anchored on the whole of government principle. The joint programme also integrates the whole of society dimension as evidenced by engagement with various stakeholders including regional intergovernmental organizations, national civil society organizations, think-thanks, private sector, academia and local communities.

Complementarities with existing or planned programmes have been identified and will guarantee sustainability. In particular, the joint programme will ensure the integration of the migration dimension in key existing data collection mechanisms such as the upcoming census and the annual labour force survey.

Innovation is also very present through the support provided to the country in experimenting for the first time with the usage of large sets of proxy data, or "big data".

JOINT PROGRAMME

Empowerment of 'Families left behind' for improved Migration Outcomes in Khatlon, Tajikistan

SUMMARY

This joint programme aims at reducing the vulnerabilities of families adversely affected by migration in one of the most remittance-dependant countries in the world.

Approximately 10% of the Tajik working age population have migrated to Russia; 85% of this group are men. Many of them gradually cease sending remittances and opt to build a new life in Russia, leaving behind an extremely vulnerable and marginalized group in Tajik society, the "abandoned families" of migrant workers. Conservative societal values and understandings of gender roles contribute to a strong dependence on men, leaving abandoned women more vulnerable, facing dispossession and lacking equal access to property, land, and credit. They can also lack access to legal remedies and often face discrimination in the application of law.

The joint programme will address vulnerabilities of these 'families left behind' in the following areas: 1) Wellbeing – the joint programme ensure that women and children left behind have access to capacitated and coordinated psychosocial services; 2) Economic resilience and inclusion – the joint programme will strengthen land and water resources utilisation, and increased access to value chains through farming, small scale processing initiatives, retail and marketing; 3) Protection of rights – the joint programme will strengthen capacity of government and NGO services, collaborate on joint advocacy and awareness campaigns, and ensure adolescents strengthen life competencies; 4) Evidence-based response – the joint programme will work closely with national /regional /local government to ensure evidence is available to guide policy planning, raise awareness among policy makers at national and district levels, and ensure support the development of a 'families left behind' section of the National Migration Concept through technical and drafting support.

JOINT PROGRAMME

Addressing the drivers and causes of migration-related vulnerabilities among border communities along the Trans-Gambia transport corridor

SUMMARY

The Trans-Gambia transport corridor is an area that has seen significant increase in migration with the 2019 opening of the Senegambia Bridge, which crosses the Gambia River. The joint programme aims to allow border communities to reap the benefits of the transport corridor without being at risk of harm by addressing the challenges along the corridor related to irregular migration, organized crime and the specific vulnerabilities faced by female migrants.

The joint programme, a pilot initiative with strong potential for replicability, will target two districts (Jarra West and Upper Baddibou) and will aim to mitigate migration challenges and improve the cross-border environment for women and youth. The main components of the programme include: 1) Enhancing border posts to preempt situations of vulnerability; 2) Strengthening capacity of border authorities; 3) Increasing awareness among women and youth of their rights; and 4) Strengthening skills and opportunities for women and youth.

The programme was conceptualized based on consultations with government and civil society stakeholders, reflecting the needs of affected populations and communities. The close engagement of community members will ensure interventions are driven by those communities, facilitate ownership and, as appropriate, provide a sustainable business model.

JOINT PROGRAMME

Access, Support, Cooperation (ASC)
Programme: A Collaborative Approach to Support Survivors of Human Trafficking

SUMMARY

The massive flows of Venezuelan migrants and refugees into Trinidad and Tobago has led to a surge in human trafficking cases, putting pressure on existing protection systems and creating higher levels of risk of abuse, violence and exploitation, especially for young women and unaccompanied and separated children.

This Joint Programme ("Access, Support and Coordination") focuses on strengthening the capacities of national and community-based partners (access), caring for and empowering survivors (support) and coordinating efforts (coordination) in response to the needs of survivors of trafficking. Built on a strong partnership with both the government and the civil society – incorporating the GCM's whole-of-government and whole-of-society guiding principles - the proposed initiative places a strong emphasis on the need to strengthen the capacity of the various actors and reinforce their cooperation.

The capacity strengthening result areas include: 1) enhanced capacity of national, non-governmental and community-based protection systems to prevent, screen/ identify, refer and provide services, rehabilitate and integrate/reintegrate survivors of trafficking; 2) strengthened coordination in mitigating risks, identifying solutions, tackling xenophobia, monitoring, and providing direct assistance to survivors of trafficking; and 3) psychosocial and economic empowerment of survivors of trafficking, and their participation in trafficking prevention and response.

This joint programme which addresses each stage in the continuum of care (from screening to reintegration), has a strong potential for scalability. As many Caribbean countries face similar challenges as a result of the Venezuela crisis, it could be replicated across the region.

JOINT PROGRAMME

Managing Health Risks linked to Migration in Afghanistan: Operationalization of International Health Regulations

SUMMARY

This timely project aims to help reduce the transmission of communicable diseases across the borders of Afghanistan – including in the context of COVID-19 – through improved implementation of the International Health Regulations (IHR).

The project will strengthen implementation of the IHR for key Points of Entry (PoE) through capacity building of government and civil society, renovation of existing PoE infrastructure, development of Standard Operating Procedures, as well as engagement with border communities to raise awareness and increase early warning capacity.

Moreover, the project will fortify policy and legal frameworks for effective IHR implementation by strengthening public health emergency surveillance systems and reporting mechanisms at air and land borders, including through cross-border collaboration.

The project has high potential for replicability and proposes an innovative approach to reinforcing surveillance systems through Population Mobility Mapping (PMM) exercises, which engage stakeholders at provincial, district, and settlement/local levels.

SUMMARY

Parrot's Beak is in the southwestern part of Guinea, where the respective territories of Guinea, Sierra Leone and Liberia meet, in a curved point of land between the Meli and Mokona Rivers. The movement of people and goods has increased in this region considerably in the last two decades with recent signs of criminal networks taking advantage of the lack of coordination between states and the vulnerability of border communities, to organize human trafficking and smuggling.

To address these challenges, the joint programme will take an integrated border management approach, that allows for addressing security, development and humanitarian concerns. The joint programme will strengthen management capacity among Guinean authorities at the southern borders; reinforce trust and collaboration among state institutions and target border communities; and Improve social cohesion among cross-border communities.

An interesting component of this programme will be its integration of public health and epidemic control factors, a lesson well-learned from the Ebola crisis. For example, trainings in rapid detection and response to epidemic threats for point of entry officers will be conducted, and protective equipment and hygiene kits provided. This will be of particular relevance in the current COVID-19 response.

Partnerships are a cornerstone of this joint programme. In addition to strong government ownership, coordination with neighbouring countries, and close engagement of affected populations will be prioritized. Also, the project will forge partnerships with the Mano River Union, a sub-regional organization, to complement ongoing work in border security and community cohesion, and will work closely with private financial service providers such as Afriland First Bank and Ecobank, to establish cross-border community credit unions.

JOINT PROGRAMME

Socio-economic integration of migrants and host communities focused on national and local governments and innovation projects

SUMMARY

The joint programme addresses issues related to the socio-economic integration of migrants, returnees and local communities in Ecuador, in the context of the Venezuela crisis and other regional mixed migration flows. It is firmly rooted in the GCM guiding principles and is based on needs identified via the Human Mobility National Boards (HMNB) process designed by Ecuador's Ministry of Foreign Affairs and Human Mobility (MREMH) involving consultations with immigrants, Ecuadorian returnees, civil society, international cooperation organizations and State institutions.

The joint programme follows a two-pronged approach directed at securing stronger participation and equitable access to livelihood opportunities among migrants and host communities; and strengthening local governments and other public stakeholders' capacities in promoting the integration of migrants and host communities in their respective territories.

The joint programme envisages close engagement with the private sector in the generation of new skills for the future of work, information tools, digital livelihoods and alternative financing mechanisms and instruments, with potential for future replication in other parts of the nation and beyond.

The joint programme is well-aligned with national priorities as outlined in the current UNDAF which calls for "...diversification of the productive structure, the generation of decent work and sustainable livelihoods and the economic inclusion of people, with equal opportunities for women and men", as well as in the National Plan on Human Mobility, with its overall objective of socio-economic inclusion.

SUMMARY

The joint programme will support the Government of the Philippines in achieving the country's priority GCM objectives: objective 8 (Facilitate fair and ethical recruitment and safeguard conditions that ensure decent work) and objective 21 (Cooperate in facilitating safe and dignified return and readmission, as well as sustainable reintegration), with a focus on the needs and protection of overseas Filipino workers throughout the migration cycle - from recruitment, employment, to return and reintegration.

This will be achieved by ensuring that: a) Government initiatives to promote fair and ethical recruitment as well as reintegration services are evidence-based, gender-responsive and coordinated; and b) the Government establishes mechanisms to translate evidence into policy and best practices pertaining to recruitment and reintegration through the migration cycle.

The joint programme will also address the challenges magnified by the COVID-19 pandemic, with large scale job losses leading to mass returns, and the need for effective reintegration frameworks and tailored services.

The whole-of-government approach is evident in this joint programme: numerous government entities (ministries and technical agencies) are directly involved in the design and implementation of the programme which places a very strong emphasis on building coordination and coherence. The partnership dimension of the programme also extends to a much broader range of actors, including trade unions, recruitment agencies, employers and migrant workers themselves through the strengthening of feedback mechanisms.

Thanks to the strong government ownership, the alignment with national priorities and the efforts to build on existing structures and mechanisms, the joint programme appears to be highly sustainable.

JOINT PROGRAMME

Addressing drivers and facilitating safe, orderly and regular migration in the contexts of disasters and climate change in the IGAD region

SUMMARY

This two-year joint programme seeks to address data and knowledge gaps in the IGAD region pertaining to the drivers of migration in the context of climate change and disasters, as well as to ensure that existing national and regional strategies on disaster risk reduction and climate action factor in the displacement of people. Through trainings and simulation exercises, this joint programme will build the capacity of national government officials to be better prepared when responding to disaster displacement. In addition, the programme will seek to ensure that people affected by climate change and disasters are part of existing national and regional mobility frameworks. One example being the establishment of opportunities for green jobs in climate affected areas.

The joint programme builds on ongoing work, programmes and action plans of IGAD, IOM, UNEP, ILO, the PDD and IFRC, and supports existing global policies and frameworks that address displacement related to the adverse impacts of climate change, notably the Sendai Framework for Disaster Risk Reduction. It will use existing information exchange platforms available in the IGAD region such as National Coordination Mechanisms.

The joint programme has a strong multi-partnership and multi-stakeholder approach and will bring together various parts of Governments, UN and other entities, in line with the GCM core principles of whole-of-government and whole-of-society.

JOINT PROGRAMME

Capacity building of local governments in Santiago (Chile) and Mexico City to strengthen the socioeconomic integration of migrants and refugees through access to decent work, sustainable livelihoods, and social dialogue

SUMMARY

This joint programme seeks to promote socioeconomic integration of migrants, refugees and asylum seekers in Mexico City and Santiago de Chile, by improving access to decent work, sustainable livelihoods, and social protection.

To this end the joint programme will implement interventions in three areas: 1) Strengthen public policies/ programmes and services offered by governmental and non-governmental actors, in the areas of access to employment, entrepreneurship and social protection; 2) Promote social dialogue among governmental -including local authorities- and social partners in order to facilitate migrants' integration in the labour market; and 3) Facilitate South-South and City-to-City exchange of good practices.

It combines the practical implementation of new programmes to foster the socioeconomic integration of migrants with the promotion of social dialogue between city authorities and social partners (employers' organizations and workers' unions) as well as civil society.

This joint programme seeks to foster exchange of good practices between two migrant-receiving cities. This initiative is fully aligned with and responsive to the Member States' call for strengthened partnership with local governments in the context of GCM implementation.

The programme forges partnerships horizontally among local institutions and stakeholders in both countries and vertically between local and national government. While building on the experience from a previous successfully implemented project between Mexico City and Sao Paulo as well as a previous exchange of practices at the local institutional level, it goes beyond the exchange of knowledge and focuses on the implementation of concrete programmes.

JOINT PROGRAMME

United Nations Pilot Project for Strengthening Migrant Integration and Social Cohesion through Stakeholders' Engagement, Socio-Economic Activities and Countering Anti-Migrant Narratives in South Africa

SUMMARY

As the main country of destination for migrants in the region, South Africa faces challenges of integration and social cohesion, with a recent history of xenophobic violence. The overall objective of this joint programme is to help address these dynamics, particularly among the populations in vulnerable situations through targeted engagement and participation of government counterparts, migrants and host communities in community-level peace and socio-economic related activities. It seeks to shape the public narrative on migration, and promote tolerance and evidence-based discussion on migration.

The joint programme will focus on the provinces of Gauteng, Kwa-Zulu Natal and Western Cape, which contains some of the largest cities, where the interplay between migrants and host communities over limited resources are much more evident and where violence attributed to xenophobia has frequently occurred.

Employing a three-pronged approach of "Prevention, Protection and Empowerment", the five PUNOs jointly seek to strengthen national and local system capacities to prevent and respond to xenophobia; promote social inclusion and peaceful coexistence among migrants, other groups and host communities; and strengthen national capacities and systems for understanding the causes, and dynamics of violence, and for articulating responses.

The joint programme is aligned with the recently adopted National Action Plan to combat Racism, Racial Discrimination, Xenophobia and Related Intolerance (2019) and exhibits a strong whole-of-government approach, involving several national ministries as well as local authorities. The activities implemented will serve as a catalyst for further pilot interventions and replications in other Southern African countries.
